Bavarian Monarchy Believed At Hand; Former Crown Prince Rupprecht Is Hailed as King

French Troops Patrol Streets of Düsseldorf After Separatist Demonstration.

GOVERNMENT NEAR FALL

By United Press

MUNICH, Oct. 1.—A monarchy will be proclaimed in Bavaria very soon, well-informed persons declared today. These persons, close to the Bavarian internal situation, believe a move to restore the Wittelsbach family to its pre-war status already is under way. They pointed to the great demonstration given former Crown Prince Rupprecht and his wife when they arrived yesterday as proof of the popularity of the former imperial family. Rupprecht was hailed by great crowds as the "king of Bavaria."

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—French troops were patrolling Düsseldorf today, following yesterday's fatal riots in which many persons were killed and wounded in fighting between German police and separatist demonstrators. Dispatches today placed the dead at 16, including 15 separatists, two "blue" and two "green" police. The wounded were estimated at 50 to 100.

Order had been restored early today. French troops marched the streets all night rigorously suppressing all attempts at disorders or gatherings. The French arrested a number of Germans charged with inciting the rioting which started yesterday afternoon when a large gathering of separatists, estimated as high as 20,000, were holding a demonstration near the center of the city, listening to speakers plead for establishment of a Rhenish republic independent of the German Reich.

The Reich cabinet was in session last night, with Chancellor Stresemann presiding, to consider the situation. The cabinet also considered outlines of an important speech the chancellor will deliver in the Reichstag tomorrow. The speech bears on the foreign and internal situation. It was assumed Stresemann would consider the state of affairs in Bavaria and explain the reason the government declared United martial law throughout the nation, with Defense Minister Cossel as a national dictator.

The city of Düsseldorf was under martial law today by proclamation of General Simon, the French commander. He said the correspondence could not agree as to the overt act which caused the bloody rioting. Some dispatches blamed "green" police, declaring their charge on the apparently peaceful demonstration of the separatists was without justification, while others said the police action was the result of a raid from police headquarters by a detachment of separatist "protective troops."

The principal fighting took place in front of a stand where a large crowd of the separatists who had arrived earlier in the city on special trains were listening to a speech by Herr Meißner, one of the separatist leaders. The police used machine guns and rifles, charging the separatists with the utmost ferocity. The demonstrationists fled in all directions, only to be met with fresh attacks by new police detachments and anti-separatist bands.

The overthrow of the Stresemann government was forecast in some circles today as the result of the chaotic internal situation. In event Stresemann is forced to resign, cabinet or dictatorship will probably be installed.

SCOTSDALE MAN DIES FROM "MILL CRAMPS," WIFE IN HOSPITAL

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 1.—Newton James McManus, 45 years old, died Sunday at 1 o'clock at East Home Place, a victim of "mill cramps." He was seized with cramps while at work Saturday morning at a local plant.

Mrs. McManus is at the Memorial Hospital at Mount Pleasant, where she underwent an operation last Wednesday. A daughter is taking treatment in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Two sons also survive.

The funeral will be Wednesday afternoon.

Slashing With Knives Follows Auto Collision

A fight which followed between the occupants of two automobiles when they collided near Adah, Sunday night resulted in two men being taken to the Uniontown Hospital suffering from stab wounds. They are Ivan Clayton, aged 31, of Adah, and James Less, aged 30, of Cates, near here.

Clayton was driving an automobile in which his brother, Robert Clayton, aged 23, of Adah, was riding, when it collided with another machine driven by Less, and which contained several passengers. The fight occurred during a dispute as to which driver was at fault.

INCREASE OF 53,000 TONS IN OUTPUT OF BITUMINOUS COAL

Total Week of September 23 11,431,000 Tons; Incomplete Returns Show Increase Beehive Cokes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—According to the weekly report of the United States Geological Survey the total soft coal mined in the week ended September 22 is estimated at 11,431,000 tons, an increase of 53,000 tons over the revised figure for the preceding week. Preliminary returns on our loadings during the early days of the week September 24-29 show no change in the rate of production and indicate that the total output will probably be about 11,400,000 tons. As probably be about 11,400,000 tons.

Production during the first 22 working days of 1923 was 402,105,000 tons, against 261,193,000 tons in 1922, 255,562,000 tons in 1921 and 425,239,000 tons in 1918, the banner year. The production of beehive coke in the week ended September 22, as at present estimated on incomplete returns from the principal coke-carrying railroads, shows an increase as compared with the preceding week. The total was 327,000 tons net, against 317,000 tons, the revised figure for the week before.

The cumulative output of beehive coke during the present year to date stands at 14,774,000 tons net. Production during corresponding periods of the four years preceding has been as follows in net tons:

Pinchot Plan Will Eliminate Ten Justices

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER.
HARRISBURG, Oct. 1.—Re-classification of the employees in the state service means the elimination of 10 justices, Governor Pinchot told 2,000 office holders assembled in the rotunda of the Capitol to hear the first of his addresses to the people of the State.

"The state service has been honey-combed with that cheap brand of politics which demands that the interests of the State and its people shall be sacrificed to the interests of some small groups," the governor declared in his speech. The employees were brought in to hear details of the plan of re-classification, effective today.

The meeting was held during their lunch hour. Not only the State but the employees have suffered from injustices of the past, Pinchot said. "The pay schedules of the State are filled with injustice because the principle of equal pay for equal work has never been applied," he said.

The purpose of the re-classification, he said, was to correct gross inequalities for public employment and to give fair opportunity for promotion.

67 Children Given First Treatment At Dunbar Clinic

Sixty-seven children reported at the Baby Clinic, Dunbar, on Friday to receive the first of three treatments for immunization against diphtheria, administered by Dr. Don C. Poswell, assisted by Miss Mary B. Friel, state nurse, and Miss Mary Friel, welfare worker for the American Manganese Manufacturing Company. A second treatment will be given on Friday, October 5, but only to those children who received the first. The full treatment, comprising three injections, must be taken otherwise it is valueless. The children who failed to report last Friday have lost their chance to receive treatment at this time. Later there may be another opportunity for the delinquents as well as other children to secure the benefits.

Fifth Death Reported in Italian Feud

By United Press.
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1.—The fifth death in the war between rival factions of the black hand society in the past six weeks was reported today when the bullet-ridden body of Patsy Polizzo, 35, of Carnegie, was found in a field off the Leechburg road, near University.

Polizzo's brother, Antonio, was slain in daylight in the downtown district here a month ago. The factional warfare is said to date back to a double murder in the negro section of Wylie avenue when two men were slain while walking in the streets.

Demented Man Chokes to Death Sister-in-Law

By United Press.
ALTOONA, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Nannie Miller, 31 years old, was choked to death while she slept at her home in Altoona, near here, early today by her demented brother-in-law, Harry Miller, 53, who made no attempt to escape and has been looked in jail. Mrs. Miller's husband works at night and the crime was not discovered until some hours later. A son of the dead woman, aged 10, heard no sound from his mother's room. The maniac used his hands to strangle her.

Philip Freeman Chapter, D. A. R., Lauded for Its Effort Toward Perpetuating Heroes' Memory

Dr. Hetrick Holds Erecting Memorial at Hill Grove Cemetery Reaffirming Act.

MUST PRESERVE MARKERS

The erection of a memorial by Philip Freeman Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the entrance of Hill Grove Cemetery to the soldiers of all wars of the United States was referred to by Dr. William H. Hetrick, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, in his address at the services held previous to the unveiling, as a most appropriate and befitting act and one that should be perpetuated by generations to come. Without this, said the speaker, "the time will come when the stones and markers of our more recent defenders will go the way of the homeless dead unless we teach those who come after us to preserve them."

"This summer it was my privilege to ramble through an old graveyard where some of the old pioneers and fathers sleep," said Dr. Hetrick in opening his address. "I saw many stones whose inscriptions are no longer legible. Many of these were Continental soldiers of the Revolution. Among these crumbling and broken stones I read one, in print as well as in memory, of a recent erection, 'To the Memory of John Craig, and his wife Isabel, who were killed by the Indians, Oct. 23, 1756.' This stone faded faster than the rest. But some day it too shall fall into unperished decay."

"The time will come when the stones and markers of our more recent defenders will likewise go the way of the homeless dead, unless we teach those who come after us to preserve them."

"This act today is in precious memory of all those who have served their country on fields of battle or on the seas since the nation's inception. In this regard it is testifying solemnly to us today, and shall so testify for years to come, in its commanding position at the gateway to the city our dear. No soldier of this country shall sink into oblivion, nor his service be wantonly forgotten."

"And I am sure there isn't an American with red blood in his veins, there isn't a soldier now living, who will not join in commemoration of"

All labor unions in the country affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will contribute to the treasury, he said.

ZR-1 TAKES TO AIR FOR TRIP TO ST. LOUIS

By United Press.
LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 1.—The ZR-1 left for St. Louis on a non-stop flight at 6:55 this morning. A radio message from the airplane as she sailed westward said: "On way to St. Louis and return, flying 2,000 feet altitude; speed 11 knots."

The ZR-1 left the air base at 6:30 o'clock and 15 minutes later rose from the field. Although a 15-mile breeze was blowing the ground crew experienced no difficulty in looking her out into the wind. Her crew is composed of 12 officers and men under Commandant Frank R. McHenry, Colonel C. G. Hall of the United States Army is on board as an observer for the army.

It is expected that the ship will arrive at St. Louis tomorrow morning between 7 and 8 o'clock.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 1.—The ZR-1 flew over this city on its way to St. Louis at 11:30 o'clock.

BONDS VALUED AT $8,000 STOLEN FROM REV. DEVIVO

Thief Enters St. Rita Rectory on West Side During Sunday Mass.

SAFE DOOR BROKEN OPEN

Entering the rectory of the St. Rita's Italian Catholic Church on the West Side yesterday morning while the pastor, Rev. H. DeVivo, was conducting mass at 8 o'clock, a thief obtained the priest's life savings, Italian government bonds worth about $8,000 in American money. No trace of them had been secured today.

Entrance was gained by forcing open a cellar door with an iron bar. An electric iron, lying on a table in the laundry was carried upstairs when it was used to break the bolt on a safe. No one was in the house at the time, as the housekeeper was also at mass. Returning about 8:30 o'clock she heard a noise upstairs and called out, "Who's there?" Receiving no response she rushed to the door and called for help. The burglar jumped from a window 10 feet above the ground and ran through the yard of the Connellsville Manufacturing & Mine Supply Company.

The police were notified immediately and Patrolman V. Bert Rittsch was sent to make an investigation. The burglar was described as a man weighing about 140 pounds and wearing a light blue suit and a gray cap. The housekeeper got no glimpse of his face. In his hurry the man left behind him a child's bank, full of small change. He had evidently procured it elsewhere.

Assistant Chief of Police P. M. Rittsch, called by Rev. DeVivo, joined the hunt. He took a clue that led to Main Street but his efforts were without results. The assistant chief believes the burglar was one well acquainted with the house and likely knew of the presence of the bonds. A number of deeds and other papers were replaced in the safe after they had been examined.

DEFLATION OF PINCHOT'S BOOM IS UNDER WAY

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Deflation of Governor Pinchot's presidential boom is under way. His rivals, particularly the supporters of President Coolidge, for the Republican presidential nomination in 1924, are now trying to turn Pinchot's triumph in the end strike into a defeat for him by blaming him for the increase in coal prices that followed settlement of the anthracite controversy.

They had an ally from the Democratic camp in this today. Governor Al Smith of New York, entirely on his own account, and of course without reference to Pinchot's presidential aspirations, gave the anti-Pinchot forces a helping hand by telling Pinchot point-blank that it was up to him and the State of Pennsylvania to prevent gouging of coal consumers by profiteers.

Smith's statement was in response to Pinchot's request that Smith see what New York could do to box the profiteers. Smith said in reply that he would do what he could but it was really up to Pinchot.

This is just what Pinchot's Republican rivals have been emphasizing in public and private ever since coal prices began to climb. Pinchot's part in the coal strike irritated a great many big Republicans extremely. His recent cryptic statement, when asked what he had to say about his presidential boom, made these same Republicans hopping mad, because it sounded like a blind and assured acceptance of the nomination. What Pinchot said was merely that some of his friends had been very kind, in suggesting him as a presidential possibility. The backers of their candidate, especially Coolidge, seemed to find in this modest and non-committal utterance cause for something akin to fury.

Coolidge's political lieutenants have made no secret of the feeling that Pinchot "harnessed into" the coal situation, and they believe he tried to "hog" the glory. There has been a great deal of oratory about it, under the surface.

Klan Roster of 18,000 Names and $700 Cash Stolen

Attorney General and Other Officials Declare It Will Be Held.

BALLOTS DISTRIBUTED

By United Press.
TULSA, Oct. 1.—An injunction prohibiting Governor Walton's "army" from interfering with the special election here tomorrow was issued by State Judge Hunt today. All forces, including militia, special police and the "citizens' volunteer army," were included in the writ.

At the election officially called, then banned by the governor, voters are to cast their ballots on a proposed law providing that the legislature may convene without an official summons from the executive.

Governor Walton declared his opposition, supported by the Ku Klux Klan, against the proposed law so that the legislature could meet and impeach him.

George F. Short, state's attorney general, W. C. McAllister, secretary of the state election board, and other officials joined in saying the election would be held. They ordered the ballots printed and made arrangements to keep the polls open. Short said: "Every voter should go to the polls quietly and peacefully to cast his ballot as his conscience dictates."

Oklahoma newspapers which the governor charged were responsible for the "present state of unrest and martial law," carried front page editorials urging voters to "do their duty."

"The Supreme Court says the election Tuesday is valid. The attorney general rules that the governor cannot legally interfere. It is up to you to answer for your ballot," was the statement circulated at the top of today's Oklahoma City Oklahoman.

Governor Walton declared that he was on the verge of proclaiming martial law throughout the state.

"I have been very patient," he said, "but one more crack and I am going to put this state under martial law that will be martial law. I am going to make them go to bed at 6 o'clock, and there will be very few passes issued after that hour."

"I have no doubt there will be many vacant houses in Oklahoma soon."

The executive made no effort to minimize the seriousness of the situation.

"There may be bloodshed," he asserted, "but there will be no election. This is my election. I called it, and I certainly have the right to postpone it. Furthermore, it would be illegal to hold it now, for the reason that the law has not been complied with through proper publication of the questions to be voted on."

Attention has been called to the fact that weeds are again growing in the Chestnut Hill Cemetery in profusion. One citizen suggested that the mayor's recent order to cut down weeds in vacant lots and other properties be enforced in the cemetery as it is in the city.

A city official said today that the weeds should be destroyed, not only because of the unkempt appearance they create, but also on account of the illness prevalent. Unsanitary conditions, it is felt, may be responsible for some of this.

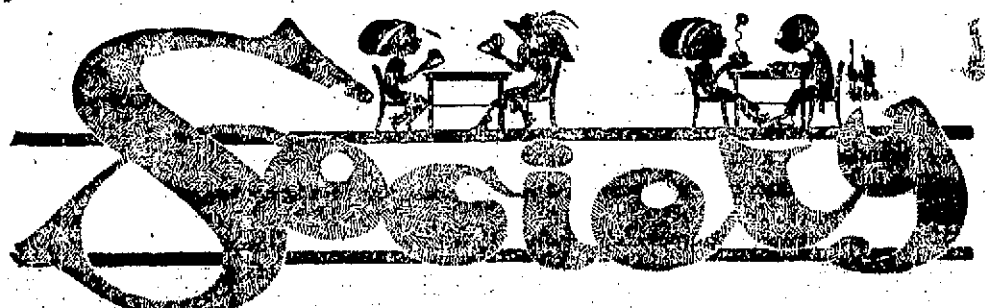

Boy Scout's Leg Broken at Play

William Long member of Troop No. 8, Boy Scouts, better known as "Buddie," sustained a broken right leg on Saturday at Sulphur Spring, near Reidstown, when he fell. The break is just above his ankle.

"Buddie" was playing "horse and rider" at the time. One gets upon the shoulders of a large boy, one, about being the horse and the other the rider, with the riders trying to unseat each other. "Buddie" happened to be the rider on this occasion. J. M. Southard, Jr., who was in charge of the Scouts, brought the boy home and summoned a doctor.

Water Supply Off.

The West Side was without water for a time yesterday evening when an automobile, driven by a man from Uniontown, ran into a water-plug at the corner of West Crawford avenue and Seventh street and snapped it off. In order to repair the line it was necessary to cut off the water which crosses the Youghiogheny River, thereby taking the entire supply away from that end of the city.

COMPOSED SONG AT AGE OF 6

Camille Saint-Saens Was One of the Most Interesting Figures in Modern Music.

All the world of music was saddened in December, 1921, by the announcement of the death of Saint-Saens, France's most distinguished living composer and one of the most interesting of all modern musicians.

In the sacred opera, "Samson and Delilah," Camille, in the role of "Samson," made one of the most sensational successes, and to him is due largely the recent popularity in America of this Saint-Saens' greatest opera.

Camille Saint-Saens (1835-1921) is one of the most interesting figures in modern music. He was a "wonder child," for at the age of two years he began talking and in six months had completed a whole phrase course, under the tutelage of his aunt.

At seven he was admitted to the Paris Conservatoire as a pupil of the famous Halévy in piano, and later of Reubert in organ and of Charles Gounod in composition. When he was ten he played so remarkably well that his mother invited a group of prominent musicians to hear him, and in the same year, at their suggestion, he gave his first concert, playing Bach, Handel, Mozart and Beethoven.

All Europe raved over his genius. He played brilliantly in concert in all parts of Europe and England for more than 20 years.

At six years he had composed some little dances and a song, "Le Soir." At sixteen he wrote a symphony. In the history of music there is not a more versatile name than his. From this time on he composed all sorts of music, operas, chamber music, piano concertos, organ music, symphonies, symphonic poems and songs.—The De-linctor.

Runaway Car Smashes Window.
Shirley Lewis, colored, was arrested at 1 o'clock yesterday morning for running a 1921 car recklessly into a window of the Fashion Store and smashing it. The motorist had parked his car in Crawford avenue and left the engine running. It clipped the brakes and, driving on, ran down the grade, jumping the curb and smashing the machine into the plate-glass window. He posted a $10 forfeit at the police station.

OTHER NEWS OF THE DAY

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 1.—The corner-stone of the Evangelical Church at Market and Grant streets was laid yesterday afternoon by Presiding Elder Rev. R. C. Miller, assisted by Joseph Hollenberger, the mason. A cash offering of $106.22 and pledges of $134, a total of $240.22, were secured. The presiding elder opened the meeting with the regular order of services. Rev. S. R. Secor of the Owensdale United Brethren Church, Rev. C. B. Miller of the Evangelical Church at South Conneltsville and Rev. A. J. Kimmell of the Evangelical Church of Scottdale read from the Scriptures. Rev. R. C. Miller led in prayer. There was special music by the Evangelical Quartet, made up of Rev. A. J. Kimmell, Rodger Sprinkle, Rev. C. W. Miller and Jasper Sprinkle. There was also music by an octet of mixed voices. The octet was made up of members of the male quartet and Ruth Kimmell, Margaret Strong, Beatrice Crabtree and Evelyn Kimmell.

On Saturday evening the quarterly conference was held. Sunday morning communion services were held and continued over until the evening meeting. It is the hope of the members of the congregation to be able to dedicate the church before the holidays. As soon as the new building is under roof the church services will be held in the basement until the building is completed. It is expected that will be within six weeks.

New Highway Patrol Soon Ready for Duty

HARRISBURG, Oct. 1.—Pennsylvania's new highway patrol will be on the roads within a month, the Department of Highways announced today. Nearly a hundred men enlisted for the highway force are now in training at Colebrook, near Mount Gretna, where they are being grounded in the automobile laws of the state and special traffic rules promulgated by Highway Secretary Wright under the powers given in highway law.

The new patrolmen will wear a smoke-gray uniform with black trimmings; black puttees; black shoes; a motor officer's cap of smoke-gray, with black trimmings. On the right arm will be a special insignia with flaming wings.

The patrol will pay particular attention to so-called "speed merchants" who disregard the laws of Pennsylvania and the rules of the road, drivers who violate the new parking rules; drivers who pass other vehicles on hills or on curves; drivers whose lamps are out of focus or of a candle-power greater than permitted by law; trucks carrying over-loads; persons who are not licensed to operate cars; minors who through mis-statements have secured drivers' licenses; "road hogs"; drivers or others who on state highways prevent in any manner the orderly passage of two-way traffic; drivers operating while under the influence of intoxicants.

"We are going to make the state highways unsafe places for the violators of the laws and rules of the road, and much safer places for the average driver," said Secretary Wright today.

A USELESS AND UNNECESSARY LAW.

When owners of automobiles make their applications for license for 1929 they will feel the effects of, and part of the price for, a foolish and unnecessary law enacted by the last Legislature and approved by Governor Pinchot with no greater show of reason or justification, unless it be to swell the revenues of the state.

This extraneous piece of legislation is the act requiring the registration of title or ownership of motor driven vehicles, for which a fee of $2.00 is exacted in addition to the regular owner's license charge. Within a short time blanks will be sent to automobile owners by the State Highway Department which, when filled out as directed and returned with the required remittance, will constitute an official registration of title to cars. These forms are to be forwarded to the department with the application for license and are expected to be in Harrisburg in sufficient time to make possible the shipment of license plates before December 31. Notice has already been given, as in previous years, that it will be unlawful to drive a car with a 1928 license plate on it after January 1, 1929.

The supreme folly and uselessness of this law lies in the fact that it requires what is, in effect, a duplication of records with respect to car ownership. Under present regulations all the information required for registration under the new law has already been given when an application has been made for the annual license. The department has on file the name, residence and other facts which identify the owner. The new law will provide nothing in addition. There may be some change in the forms—and very probably in the direction of greater complexity, not simplification—but in essence the information given will be precisely the same as now furnished.

For these reasons automobile owners have not seen, and even now do not see, that the new law will serve any good purpose other than, perhaps, giving places for a few more clerks at Harrisburg. Multiplying car owners an additional $2.00 per year for the privilege of owning a car means that the state will have at least $2,000,000 added to its revenue. And by the way, this was not included in the estimated revenues when, on the score of insufficient income, Governor Pinchot applied his paring knife to the appropriations for hospitals, Penn State College and other state and municipal institutions.

The only thing automobile owners can do, as a condition of being granted a license, is to pay the so-called "title registration" fee. This will be one penalty for having failed to foresee, at the time the measure was introduced in the legislature, what would be the effect of its enactment into a law.

That it is a revenue producing act, without having been scheduled as such at the time of its introduction, along with the increased tax on gasoline and other money takers, there might be considerable difficulty in securing its repeal at the next session, as ought to be done.

REMOVING A REPROACH.

The members of Philip Freeman Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are deserving of very sincere congratulations by every patriotic citizen in this community for their interest, energy and resourcefulness which have resulted in the erection in Hill Grove Cemetery of a memorial to the soldiers of all the wars in which the United States has been engaged.

In providing the very simple but appropriate and impressive tribute to the men who served our country in time of need, the Daughters of the American Revolution have removed no little reproach which has long rested upon Connelville.

While we have never failed to show our patriotism whenever there has been occasion for its practical manifestation, and while our young men have never failed to respond in large numbers to our country's call in every emergency, we have never taken the time and effort to provide some form of permanent public recognition of the services these men have rendered, such as is embodied in the memorial unveiled Sunday afternoon.

This will show to succeeding generations that the sacrifices of the soldiers in all the wars have been duly appreciated by those who came after them or lived contemporaneously with them. As such it will be an inspiration to succeeding generations to prize still more highly the heritage these men have left to the nation for which they felt it a patriotic duty to offer and, it need be, to give their all.

The announcement of the program of the convention of the American Federation of Labor is almost as comprehensive as the President's annual message to Congress.

ORGANIZED LABOR

may have and give assistance in pushing forward the program upon which we believe depends our future national well being and safety.

"We commit ourselves to greater efforts in the organization of all workers. We urge no new formula, no new philosophy; we urge only a great consciousness of purpose and a definite air towards its more rapid accomplishment."

With this prelude, the council proceeded to a report and discussion of the work of the past year, and to make recommendations on several important questions of labor policy. A digest of these follows:

Child Labor.

All local labor bodies were urged to demand Congressional adoption and submission to the states of the proposed amendment to enable anti-child labor laws to be passed.

Supreme Court.

The council repeated its advocacy, endorsed by the 1922 convention, of adoption of a constitutional amendment providing that if the Supreme Court nullifies a law of Congress, it shall remain a law if repassed by two-thirds of both houses of Congress.

Attacks on Unionism.

A "propaganda of destructive criticism" has been aimed at the trade union movement, "frankly revolutionary and having for its ultimate object not only destruction of trade unionism but the eventual overthrow of the democratic government of the United States," the council said. The catchword of this propaganda has been "amalgamation," it was stated, referring to those who favor "one big union."

Immigration.

"Congress will be called upon to decide between the greed of unfair employers and the self-preservation of our people," in dealing with the immigration problem, the report said, pointing out "the danger to our institutions if immigration is not restricted to a greater extent than is provided in the present law." The convention was urged to go on record in favor of much stricter limitation, even for complete prohibition of immigration for a time. Commenting on the demand for an Americanization program, the council said:

"No better time could a campaign to this end be launched than at present, and its success would be made more certain by the complete restriction of immigration."

Unemployment.

The council recommended that the A. F. of L. participate heartily in all efforts being made in a time of prosperity like the unemployment period. All wage earners were urged to send to headquarters their best thought and suggestion on means of preventing unemployment.

"In addition we have no hesitancy in emphasizing the fact," said the council, "that the most potential factor against unemployment is the resistance against wage reductions."

Banking and Credits.

Emphasizing the importance of credit in the industrial life of the nation, the council reported adversely on the plan to establish a central labor bank in Washington, D. C., to co-ordinate the activity of labor banks throughout the country. It pointed out that the twenty-three labor banks now in business or about to start are organized on different plans and that it would be impossible to bring them together in a unit. The central bank project is, therefore, "not only impracticable, but undesirable," the council said.

Pointing to the fact that, through the activities of the A. F. of L. National Campaign Committee, 25 candidates for United States Senator who had been loyal to labor and the people were elected, and 11 reactionary Senators defeated, and the 170 House members were elected, either because the A. F. of L. supported them or opposed their rivals, the council advocated that the convention provide more funds for similar activities in the 1929 campaign so that "a most thorough campaign can be inaugurated and carried to a successful conclusion."

Kansas Industrial Court.

"Kansas once again is heading toward freedom" as the result of the Supreme Court's decision "dismembering" the Industrial Court, the council said. In view of the decision "the only purpose now being served by the remnants of ex-Governor Allen's law is to provide jobs for his political appointees on this court and to squander the money of the taxpayers of Kansas," Governor Davis was commended for his efforts to abrogate the law entirely.

Open Shop.

The so-called "American plan" or open shop was condemned as an effort to put workers into slavery, and the council declared that "the successful strikes of nearly 2,000,000 wage-earners in the United States are responsible for the prosperity this country is enjoying, since these strikes were adjusted by collective bargaining."

Ku Klux Klan.

The Klan was condemned on the ground that "it is destructive of that freedom and devotion to the principles of liberty which we regard as the first essentials in democratic civilization. We believe that no true democrat can consistently participate in the activities of the Ku Klux Klan or any similar organization, and we unhesitatingly denounce its efforts to supplant ordered government, to promote religious intolerance, racial antagonisms and bigotry."

Fascist Movement.

The effort to organize fascist groups in the United States was denounced as "a token of hostility to our democratic institutions." Foreign-born workers were urged to "refrain from joining the fascist or any similar movement."

Railroads and the Courts.

An exhaustive review of the shopmen's strike and the Wilkerson injunction was made. The council declared the injunction "marked a new advance of the courts of equity in their usurpation of power to control

TAXI TAXI

Industrial controversies," which may provide a tyrannical precedent in other cases."

The Railroad Labor Board and the Esch-Cummings act were roundly condemned and their abrogation urged.

Minimum Wage Law.

Nullification of the District of Columbia minimum wage law for women should stimulate the organization of women, not alone for their own protection, but also for protection of men wage earners, the council said.

Congress.

In a comprehensive review of the work of the 67th Congress the council declared it "will find an unenviable place in history. Reaction and incompetence, backed apparently by no other thought than personal and partisan political advantage, made it impossible to remedy any of the evils troubling the people of our country."

One of the greatest dangers to the country, the report said, is legislation by "lame ducks," or defeated members of Congress.

Cutting Down

Lawrence News Journal.

By instinct and tradition President Coolidge stands for economy.

Thrill and the simple life have marked his career and it is plausible to count upon his influence for the same practices in the conduct of the government.

His predecessor paved the way by inaugurating the budget system, which for the first time in the nation's history injected a real sound business principle in the federal government's finances and put a halt to the extravagance of department and bureau executives.

If the state and municipal governments will now follow the example of the federal authorities the nation's tax bill will be decreased within the next few years.

Living costs have increased and costs of running governments are similarly affected, but the old custom of reckless extravagance by public officials is passing and today they are called upon to show practical results for every dollar expended.

AN EARTHQUAKE.

Upon a restless world we build
And hoist our sturdy foundations.

Our palaces, with treasures filled,
Through generations shall endure.

Nor fire nor storm can bring them low,
These are the works of man.

Builded to conquer every foe—
And so they dreamed in old Japan.

Yet when inspiration grows the world
And seeks to shift its weight of care,
The proudest man has built can shatter
Into the darkness of despair.

Is but the twinkling of an eye
Laughter is changed to dreadful cries;
Down come the temples from the sky,
Vain is the wisdom of the wise.

Glory and pomp are swept aside,
Riches are stripped of shining worth,
High places are naked of their pride
And desolation sweeps the earth.

Is but the shoulders of the land
Which make a little turn or twist,
Nothing that man has built can stand
Nothing its basis of can exist.

Islands are swallowed by the sea,
Cities are swept into the air,
Their strikes were safely used to be,
People in countless numbers die.

Of all the terrors man must face
Against his dream of high success,
The future glory of his race,
An earthquake is most merciless.

Grim Reaper

JOHN W. WOODS.

John W. Woods, 62 years old, died at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning at his home, 514 Morrell avenue, West Side. He had been ill for about five weeks with blood-poisoning, as a result of an injury to the left hand when it was struck on August 27 by a railroad rail. For the past 10 years he had been a section foreman for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He was born in Uniontown and received his education in the schools there. He was a son of William and Louise Stewart Woods. For three years he was with W. J. Rainey, Inc., at Mount Braddock. Then he entered the employ of the railroad company. For a year and a half he was on the Broad Ford section and for a similar time worked on the DuBar section. Since then he has been employed between Lehigh and Deacon. On November 23, 1882, he married Miss Clara M. Thews of Percy. He was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church of Percy. In addition to his widow he is survived by one son, Charles, and his mother, 87 years old, at home; one brother, Samuel, of Uniontown, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the home and at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Church in West Apple street. Rev. J. M. Lamberton, the pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in the Hill Grove Cemetery.

AMOS HIXON.

The funeral service for Amos Hixon, who was killed at Drumright, Okla., will be held Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hixon, on the old Lytle homestead two miles south of Vanderbilt, along the road to Junata. Burial will be in Dickerson Run Union Cemetery. The body arrived in Connelville Sunday morning, in charge of Funeral Director J. E. Sims.

BOWMAN CARR.

Bowman Carr, 80 years old who for many years lived in the Flatwoods community but in his declining years a resident of Connelville, died Sunday night in Uniontown. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Sabina Piersol. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Ira Blair at Perryopolis. The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 o'clock at Flatwoods Church. Burial will be at Flatwoods.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear one, Miss Mary Al. Perro, who died a year ago today, October 1, 1932. This day brings back memories. Of our loved one gone to rest, And those who think of her today, Are those who loved her best. We think we see her smiling face, Although one year has passed away, And in our memory fresh she is, And will be to the last. Sadly missed by her father, brother, and sisters Mrs. M. J. Glosso.—Advertisement.—Oct-1.

Card of Thanks.

We sincerely thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy extended us during the illness and death of our wife and mother, Mrs. John Speight. Especially do we thank those who sent floral tributes, donated cars, Rev. O. W. Bolton, Rev. T. M. Gladson and the choir, Mr. John Speight and family.—Advertisement.—Oct-1.

Favorite Fabrics for Bridesmaids

Organdie and Taffeta Are Given Preference for Nuptial Affairs.

A wedding is an occasion when dresses of the picture type may be worn to the best advantage, observes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. However, the bridesmaids prefer the stunner sort of dress, there is the lovely little chemise dress of organdie over bright-colored, silk foundations. Taffeta has always been a favorite material for bridesmaids' dresses. It is still being used extensively. But especially for an outdoor wedding, organdie is quite the nicest material. It comes in an even greater variety of shades than taffeta and is perfectly charming when made over the thin, supple silver cloth foundations of this material. Such frocks are made with fitted or semi-fitted bodices and full, long skirts. Sometimes a trimming consisting of bands of silver cloth is used. With the wide-skirted models the poke-bonnet hat is the most charming. These are very demure and Quaker-like in appearance. They may be of taffeta in a shade to match the dress, they may be of lace, or they may be of organdie. Those of taffeta are very attractive worn with organdie frocks trimmed with ribbons in a color to match the hat. Many of these bonnets are made of batiste for bridesmaids and trimmed with tiny rosebuds. One bridesmaid's costume worn at a recent wedding consisted of an embroidered organdie frock with a deep hertha cut short in front and falling to the waistline in the back. The hat was of fine white batiste, very close fitting, and trimmed with tiny rosebuds.

At a recent outdoor wedding the bridesmaids wore full-skirted dresses of orchid and pale yellow organdie with matching hats. The maid of honor was dressed in pale blue taffeta. She, as well as each bridesmaid, carried trailing garlands of field flowers and leaves, a lovely idea for a wedding of this sort.

Not all bridesmaids are gowned in taffeta, organdie and batiste. Lace and chiffons have their adherents. These give opportunity for still other styles of dresses, such as the ruffled frock, which is perfectly charming in lovely shades of chiffon, such as yellow, deep green or orchid. These usually have very long, full skirts and, like the organdie frocks, are worn with the old-fashioned pokes of taffeta, sometimes embroidered in silver or gold.

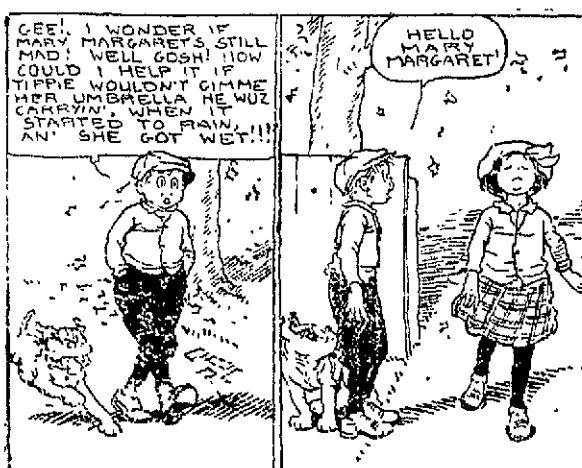

MARSH FILLED WITH DUCKS

Thousands of Water Fowl Make Their Home in Hay Bottom. In the wide arched marsh of Crook and Creek valley, three miles east of Meads, Kan., thousands of wild water fowl are making their home. In many places the ducklings are so numerous that one can scarcely make his way through the tall grass without stepping on them.

From the present outlook this marshy region will be a hunter's paradise the coming fall and winter. There are several thousand acres in this immense hay bottom, and it has long been a famous resort and nesting place for aquatic fowl during food years.

Busily Engaged. The farmer toils and never stops. His ears no limit in. For when he isn't raising crops he's running politics.

Our Celebration

WE HAVE inaugurated these sales as a fitting celebration of our one year of successful business operation in Connellsville and 32 years in Uniontown — successful only through the co-operation of the buying public, who, by their steady support and constant patronage, have helped to make these the leading stores in Fayette County.

Fresh, new merchandise in liberal quantities has been specially purchased for this occasion, and, working in conjunction with many of the manufacturers, we have secured from them generous discounts. These in turn we give to our customers, together with special price concessions on our own regular Fall and Winter merchandise, making the values offered in these Anniversary Sales the best in many years.

These prices are only in effect during this sale and while merchandise lasts

Legless Soldier Witness In Court-Martial Of Army Surgeons For Malpractice

PRIVATE GUY PENDLETON.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Charges of malpractice will be preferred against Captain Samuel C. Gwynne, former ward surgeon at Ft. Belvoir hospital, near here, upon completion of a similar court-martial of Major George W. Cook of the U. S. Army medical corps.

Major Cook and Captain Gwynne were charged by Private Guy Pendleton of the U. S. Army with having caused the amputation of his legs without justification. It is claimed that negligence caused a diseased condition of the limbs, which made amputation necessary.

"Keep America American"

One of the most strikingly patriotic articles yet at the same time carefully logical in presentation of cold facts on the immigration question, appeared in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post under the title, "Americans On Guard," by Rev. William T. Ellis.

Mr. Ellis described particularly conditions at Constantinople and the character of the disease of Russian refugees awaiting a chance to emigrate to America. He pictured the burning of "Red" and "Black" in the streets of the United States, who simply could no longer endure stifling life by watching streams of undesirable immigrants pouring into the United States from this center of Asiatic pestilence, and who banded themselves together in a sort of unofficial court of inquiry, and for weeks at their own time and expense, passed upon every applicant for admission to the United States.

Mr. Ellis states that: "Whatever Yankee shrewdness and efficiency and patriotic zeal can lawfully do is being done to purify the stream of immigration from this point of peril."

"The greatest single present force for world stability and world peace is the United States of America. Once let it become disoriented and demoralized by the dominance of alien and un-American ideas and the life is up for the family of nations. Our folks at home simply do not understand the state of the Old World and how real the existing menace to civilization is. Therefore they let the sentimentalists and special interests follow a course that saps the very foundations of our country."

"If America understood, as clearly as does the Soviet representative who works out his schemes in the cafes of Constantinople, that it is through Ellis' land and the other gates of immigration that the revolutionary forces must enter the country, then these gates would be shut absolutely, and as quickly as Congress could act. I learned more than a little, here on the banks of the Bosphorus, of schemes for smuggling drugs and drink into America, and of the social evils that spread from this focus to all the world; but these disturbed me not at all as compared with the evidence that from this central spot, by a variety of methods and from assorted motives, a stream of unassimilable life is being directed toward the United States."

"It is not merely to save America herself that we should fly the flag. Keep America American, but primarily in order to save an imperiled civilization. When I left the states there was a terrible bulbaration being raised, especially by religious circles, to force America both to intervene in Turkey and also to open her gates to admit Christian refugees from Asia Minor, Greece and Armenia. Naturally, I expected to find the fountainhead of this propaganda in the headquarters of the relief agencies out here, where the tragedy of the cause is best understood. Instead, in talking over the matter with the officials of highest responsibility at the headquarters of the Americans in charge of the refugees and the orphans, I found them ardent advocates of a wise immigration policy. They are utterly opposed to dumping these people who are in their care into America. They see the real menace involved in the unsimilable influx of these Asiatic refugees. 'What I can't understand,' said the chief of the American Relief workers, 'is why our country did not shut the gates 20 years ago.'

"One educated American out here argues, on the basis of some expert sociological report he has read, that if we had long ago barred the access of Eastern and Southern Europe and Asia, the population of the United States would be quite as great as it is today, with all citizens of the historic American type, and that there would be no dearth of men to do the physical labor; for the old American notions respecting hard work would not have been altered by the European invasion."

"The way in which these Americans abroad debate and discuss the country's problems is really affecting. Patriotism is a passion with these expatriates. Times without number, in many parts of the world, when a traveler recently from the homeland has yielded to the invitation to tell groups of Americans about conditions in the states, I have heard them, with tears in their eyes, cheer fervently for the old land and flag. To them there is a definite meaning in the historic and spiritual significance of the United States."

"From afar they have caught a vision of the genius of the country and of the importance of its preservation. 'Bluntly stated, the immigrationists put their considerations ahead of the interests of America. Those societies that promote immigration to the states cannot be expected to look at the subject from the American viewpoint; their interest is quite otherwise.'

"A middle west politician was recently in Constantinople, at the expense of the Near East Relief. He took occasion, immediately upon his arrival to make a plea for immigration before the American Luncheon Club, on the ground of the shortage of labor in America. He may have wondered why his bartering words fell so cold upon his listeners' ears. Had he been better acquainted with these Americans he would have known that all of them have matured convictions upon this subject. Out here these independent Yankees are even guilty of the least mistake of suggesting that there is a large army of idle politicians in America who could profitably be employed on the farms, in the mines and in the mills."

"From this distance we look upon the myriads of white-collar parasites, the nonproducers who are selling stocks and bonds, the youth who are doing women's work in stores and offices, and the lounge lizards and the afflicted inmates of cabarets and dance halls and the street forerunners, and we dare to believe that they and the country would be better off if they could all learn the old-fashioned American ideals of the dignity of labor."

"It is not a shortage of men, power that this America, but a misapplication of our present abundant supply."

LEGION TO FIGHT HUGE AIR FORCE

Delegates to Brussels Meet Seek to Curb Planes.

ACT TO SAVE U. S. BILLIONS

Allied veterans of the World war may bring about the holding of an international air conference to limit military aircraft armament and end the present race for superiority in progress among the nations of Europe.

Alarmed at the air preparations being made by France, England, Italy and Russia, the American Legion delegates to the International Veterans' federation convention in Brussels will urge a determined fight to induce delegates from all countries to influence their governments to participate in an international meeting to reduce air armaments.

The Legion charges that France, by embarking upon the most stupendous air program in the history of the world, has started a mad race for mastery of the air from a military standpoint which threatens to disturb world peace. Leaders of the veterans' organization have determined to make all efforts to curb this demonstration of militarism on the part of their former allies.

To Ask Air Disarmament Meet.

To this end the Legion will ask President Coolidge to call an air disarmament conference in Washington, similar to the conference on naval limitations held in 1921.

There is no exaggeration in regard to the seriousness of the situation, according to the Legion leaders, who point out that France has 140 squadrons of military flying machines and intends to have 220 squadrons by 1935. Included in the armament, they state, are planes which carry 75-millimeter cannon, others that can transport six machine guns and their crews, enormous bombers, special fighting ships armored with battleship steel and actual troops of the air. England, which has voted an extra $27,500,000 to enlarge its air armada, is France's nearest competitor. It is stated, while Russia has created a separate air service with plans for extensive expansion.

Acts to Save U. S. Billions.

It is the Legion's desire to hold the conference before it becomes necessary for the United States to appropriate billions of dollars for construction of military aircraft to cope with the situation created by the activities of foreign powers.

Alvin Owsley, national commander of the Legion, just before sailing for Europe to attend the veterans' conference, expressed the situation as follows:

"The conference on naval limitation at Washington in 1921 went a long way to persuade the world's mind toward peace upon the water. Land forces, too, are fast being reduced. It is only in the air that danger threatens. France has equipped herself with an air fleet which is equal in power to the combined air forces of the rest of the world. The French minister of war declared his country is tired of being a battlefield and is preparing, should war come again, to carry the battle immediately into the enemy's country."

"At this the British across the channel have taken alarm. A former cabinet minister declares that France with her tremendous air forces could destroy London tomorrow. So the British vote additional millions of pounds and set out to build as great an air force as France has. Premier Baldwin says England must be prepared 'against attack by the strongest air force within striking distance.' It is France against whom England thus prepares. The British admit it."

"Along comes Italy, and after signing the Washington naval treaty and greatly diminishing her land force, announces the establishment of a separate air force and votes large credits to expand it as soon as possible into an effective war force."

"By these means is the peace of mind of Europe disturbed and the peace of the world threatened. The allied partnership, which should be preserved intact to deal with the great problems of the hour, which is as necessary to civilization, now is strained and endangered. The American Legion feels there is a way out. Let this mad race for supremacy in the air be ended as the high race for supremacy on the seas was ended. It is foolhardy to contend that it cannot be done."

ROSS FOUND MAGNETIC POLE

Interesting Spot is Almost Directly North of the City of Winnipeg.

The magnetic pole, as distinguished from the geographical pole, is the point where the needle stands vertically, showing the center of terrestrial magnetism for the Northern hemisphere. This was discovered June 1, 1831, by Capt. John Ross. The amount of the dip of the needle was 90 degrees, 50 minutes, being thus within one minute of the pole. If it is not a true existence where he stood, was further confirmed by the actions of several horizontal needles in his possession. Not one of them showed the slightest effort to move from the position in which it was placed. This interesting spot is almost directly north of the city of Winnipeg, and within less than 20 degrees of that city. To be exact, the location of the pole is 70 degrees, 5 minutes and 17 seconds latitude and 98 degrees, 46 minutes and 45 seconds longitude.

Inventor Saved From Prison.

Thomas Cochran, who took out the first patent for the application of compressed air to tunneling, served in the British navy, later was a political reformer in parliament, speculator heavily in stocks, was convicted of fraud and escaped from prison.

REMINDERS

Come in the store when you are down town and make yourself at home. We'll be glad to see you and you can't help but see something you need and which you never remember to buy. Our liberal credit terms are always at your convenience.

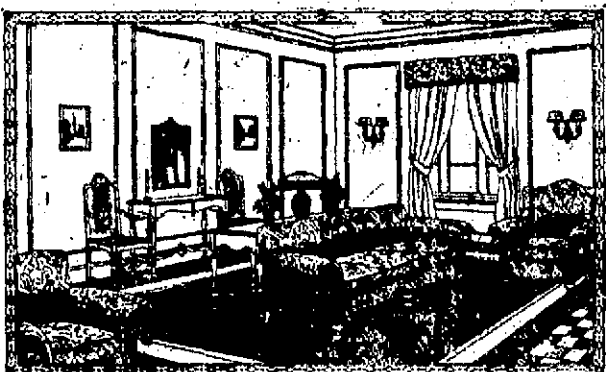

We want you to see our new Fall rugs. They are here in a profusion of colors and designs. If you want a small rug or a large rug—see ours. You'll be surprised at the magnitude of our display. It includes rag rugs, grass rugs, tapestries, Axminsters, velvets and Royal Wiltons.

Here is something that you need every day—a Bissel Carpet Sweeper. Perhaps you have an electric sweeper but you still have to use it twice a week. It does a thorough job too. Never the less you need something for the other five days in the week. The Bissel Sweeper will fill the bill. It will take up the surface dirt and you have no lights to screw in and out when you use it.

Pal O' Mine Electric Washers

Don't leave your wife to do the washing the old-fashioned way. Save her strength and vitality. With the Pal O' Mine Electric Washer she can have her washing on the line in half the time it takes her to do it by hand. The Pal O' Mine is especially pleasing to families who live in a small apartment because it is entirely enclosed in a neat enameled cabinet, permitting it to be left in the kitchen without marring its appearance.

A Massive Overstuffed Living Room Suite for..... $195

This living room suite is astonishingly low priced. It is a suite any one can be proud to own. A day-bed, arm chair and rocker compose the suite. All pieces are massively built and are upholstered in an exquisite combination of mohair and velour. All cushions are removable, making it easy to clean. Marshall spring construction is used throughout.

This Beautiful Ten-Piece Walnut Dining Room Suite $295

We are featuring the suite shown above at the exceptional low price of $295. It is a beautiful creation of the Queen Anne design and is constructed of genuine two-toned American Walnut. The buffet is 66 inches long. All drawers have mahogany interiors and are dust-proof. Another feature is the sliding silver tray. The server is enclosed and the china closet has a wooden panel on each side. The oblong table has a six foot extension and the Host chair and five diners are upholstered with tapestry.

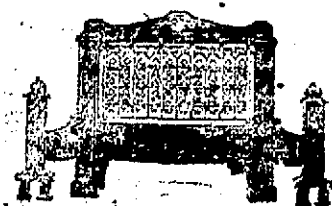

Combination Ranges

Regardless of whether you want a combination range, gas range, coal range or an oil stove—see Zimmerman's first. You'll be surprised at the completeness of the display as well as the low prices. For example—a gas range of the high closet type is now being featured at $59.50.

How Old Is a House?

You can figure age two ways—by the number of years since the house was built or by the number of years it still is good for. In both points of view—both its youth and its "expectations"—depend largely on the paint. If it has been kept well-painted it is still young. Whether it shall continue young and well-preserved depends on whether or not it shall continue to be well-painted.

Many Colonial mansions stand today as unchanged and lovely as they were generations back. Pure white-lead paint is the secret of their youthfulness. Nothing has ever taken its place as a protective coating for property. Dutch Boy white-lead and linseed oil is paint at its best. It costs no more but does more than most paints. We use it.

By the way, "How old is your house?"

The Paramount

"MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME"—A human drama of mother love at the Paramount today and Tuesday, was written by Anthony Paul Kelly, the man who prepared "Way Down East" for the screen. It is a story which is destined to become as popular as the famous ballad after which it is named.

Mr. Kelly, for the past ten years has been identified with numerous motion picture successes and his name is probably better known today than any other screen writer. Kelly's first screen story was an adaptation of "The Sea Wolves," Jack London's famous story. Success came from the start. His first original screen story was "The Soul of a Woman," in which Emily Stevens was the star. He has adapted more big stories for the screen than any other American writer of his age. He is still in the twenties. Among his stories are "The Great Divide," "The Thief," "The Man of the Hour."

The Soisson

"SCARS OF JEALOUSY." The hazardous business of running down bootleggers and the dangers to which United States revenue officers were exposed in the days before the Eighteenth Amendment, went into effect are thrillingly demonstrated in Thomas H. Ince's latest film production, "Scars of Jealousy." The scenes of the exciting hunt for a bandit moonshiner in this picture are laid in the mountains of northern Alabama, the fabled country of the south, where Uncle Sam's department of justice men fought many battles with the moonshiners of a bygone day. Filming of these scenes was done with the aid of a former United States marshal, so that the incidents in the capture of Caddy Jakes, the outlaw who was wanted on a charge of killing a revenue officer, would not be overdrawn. How successful Mr. Ince was in making the scenes true to life is attested by a number of department of justice men who have previewed the photoplay. "Scars of Jealousy" is now showing at the Soisson Theatre.

The Orpheum

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM"—There are nearly as many actors whose work shows in "Orphans of the Storm," D. W. Griffith's newest photoplay, which has been booked by the management of the Orpheum Theatre for today, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, as in the somber and sad of all the "speaking plays" at the height of the theatrical season on Broadway, New York. The registers of their names, addresses and photographs would suffice to launch one of the biggest of dramatic agencies. Indeed, an "Orphans of the Storm" alumni association, if organized, would have a large membership. A rapid survey of the still photographs shows 568 persons have unit roles in this picture individually costumed and calling for individual business. They are real actors, essential to the drama of the scenes in which they appear, worthy to be set down in any stage programme as delineators of "bits." Among the phalanx are former stars of New York and London stages, players of principal roles in earlier Griffith epics, sterling "character men" and "character women," expert dancers, champion wrestlers, accomplished fencers, child wonders, artists, models, even pierrots and pierrottes of the sawdust and inlamb—a gathering of all the talents that make up the many sided amusement world.

The Arcade

The poppiest of girls girl shows is here. Last season a big hit, this year bigger, better, grander than ever, the "Live, Laugh and Love Revue," the title of Kiter's offering, is beginning the new season and is entirely made over. That is, the songs and music are new, the plays presented are new and the vaudeville acts for most part are new and original. The same applies to the production novelties. Now faces also swell the cast to 22 persons this year. The opening play, "Dandelion Girl," is a novelty lay with a regular plot. There is rhyme and reason for the whole show. Now music and, above all, high class vaudeville, make the show doubly entertaining. Leading the list of vaudeville stars is Hal Kiter himself, a "different" type of comedian who never resorts to suggestiveness to "get over." To back him up are such features as "The Rose City Syncopators," a west coast jazz band of five, Phil de Peggio Mart, assisted by Leroy Batio, dancing demons; Jacks and Helen Eppens, in "Glowing Through Life," a song cycle; Paul and Ellen Eppens, saxophonists supreme; also Al Sharp, the Dixie Banjo band and the juvenile wonders, Baby Betty Jean and Baby Ruthie, whose combined weight is but 74 pounds.

WASHINGTON—This cosmopolitan city, well known to problems of international romance, scandal and intrigue, and fairly shock-proof after years of the direct primary, it stamped over what attitude to take toward a 20-year-old girl, Miss Katherine Radcliffe, who recently "threw over" her soldier fiance and eloped with a dairymaid's son.

Miss Radcliffe, introduced in exclusive circles here last winter, was to have married Lieut. Julian P. Brown, aide to General Smedley Butler, U. S. Marine Corps, in two weeks. Wednesday she met George Wise, whose father owns a dairy. Friday she married him. The newly married couple have separated pending arrival of Mrs. Wise's father from Cardiff, Wales.

Japanese Interpreter Enlightens American Who Made a Grave Mistake.

The women of Japan have not yet attained a very high position in society. The Land of the Rising Sun is a man's country; there is no doubt about that. There is some agitation, rather sporadic, about equal rights for women, women suffrage and all that sort of thing, and occasionally we read a somewhat inaccurate article about the "new woman in Japan," but she still has a long way to go, before she will be considered man's equal. The man is the kingly of the household in Japan; everything revolves around him. If "donna-see," the master, is displeased with anything, out it goes. Men are planned solely to tickle the master's palate, and the woman of the house may eat or leave them. Just as she chooses, so long as "donna-see" does not register a complaint, nothing else matters.

I have tried to draw Samuel Marlowe so that he will live on the printed page. I have endeavored to delineate his character so that it will be as an open book. And if I have succeeded in my task, the reader will by now have become aware that he was a young man with the gall of an army officer. His conscience, if he ever had one, had become atrophied through long disuse. He had given this sensitive girl the worst fright she had had since a mouse had got into her bedroom at school. He had caused John Peters to totter off to the airport street range making low, bleating noises. And did he care? No! All he cared about was the fact that he had erased forever from Billie's mind that undignified picture of himself as he had appeared on the boat and substituted another which showed him brave, resourceful, gallant. All he cared about was the fact that Billie so cold ten minutes before had allowed him to kiss her for the forty-second time. If you had asked him, he would have said that he had acted for the best, and that, out of evil consequences, good or some excellent thing like that. That was the sort of man Samuel Marlowe was.

His face was very close to Billie's, who had cheered up wonderfully by this time, and he was whispering his degraded words of endearment into her ear, when there was a sort of explosion in the doorway.

"Great Godfrey!" exclaimed Mr. Moffat Bennett, gazing on the scene from this point of vantage and mopping with a large handkerchief a scarlet face, which, as the result of climbing three flights of stairs, had become slightly scabious. "Great Heaven above!"

CHAPTER XIII

Remarkable as the apparition of Mr. Bennett appeared to his daughter, the explanation of his presence at that moment in the office of Marlowe, Thorpe, Prescott, Winslow and Appleby was simple. He had woken early that morning, and, glancing at his watch on the dressing table, he had suddenly become aware of something bright and yellow beside it, and had paused, transfixed like Robinson Crusoe staring at the footprint in the sand. If he had not been in England, he would have said it was a patch of sunlight. Hardly daring to hope, he pulled up the shades and looked out on the garden.

It was a superb morning. It was as if some giant had uncorked a great bottle full of the distilled essences of grass, trees, flowers and hay. Mr. Bennett sniffed luxuriantly. Gone was the gloom of the past ten days, swept away in a great exhilaration.

Breakfast had deepened his content. Henry Mortimer, softened by the same balmy influence had been perfectly charming. All their little differences had melted away in the genial warmth. And then suddenly Mr. Bennett remembered that he had sent Billie up to London to enlist the aid of the Law against his old friend, and remorse gripped him. Half an hour later he was in the train, on his way to London to intercept her and cancel her mission. He had arrived breathless at Sir Malley's office and the first thing he had seen was his daughter in the arms of a young man who was a total stranger to him. The shock took away his breath again just as it was coming back. He advanced shakily into the room, and supported himself with one hand on the desk, while with the other he pried the handkerchief from his superheated face.

Billie was the first to speak. "Why, father," she said, "I didn't expect you!"

As an explanation of her behavior this might, no doubt, have been considered sufficient, but as an excuse for it Mr. Bennett thought it inadequate. He tried to convey a fatherly reproof by puffing like a seal after a long dive in search of fish.

"This is Sam," proceeded Billie.

"Sam Marlowe."

Mr. Bennett became aware that the young man was moving toward him with outstretched hand. It took a lot to disconcert Sam, and he was the calmest person present. He gave evidence of this in a neat speech. He did not in so many words congratulate Mr. Bennett on the piece of luck which had befallen him, but he tried to make him understand by his manner that he was distinctly to be envied as the prospective father-in-law of such a one as himself.

Mr. Bennett stared in a frozen sort of way at the hand. He had placed Sam by now. He knew that Sir Malley had a son. This presumably, was he. But the discovery did not diminish his indignation.

"I am delighted to meet you Mr. Bennett," said Sam. You could not have come at a more fortunate moment. You see for yourself how things are. There is no need for a long explanation. You came to find a daughter, Mr. Bennett, and you have found a son!"

And he would like to see the man, thought Sam, who could have put it more clearly and pleasantly and tactfully than that.

"What are you talking about?" said Mr. Bennett, recovering his breath. "I haven't got a son."

"I will be a son to you! I will be the prop of your declining years."

"What the devil do you mean by declining years?" demanded Mr. Bennett with peculiar emphasis.

Announcing The Greatest Advance since the Self Starter

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION an exclusive feature of the 1924 CHANDLER

Easiest and Safest Car to Drive

As the feature of its 1924 models, A Chandler presents the biggest advance in motor car construction since the self-starter—the Traffic Transmission.

The starter overcame the evils of cranking. The Traffic Transmission does away with the terrors of shifting gears, eliminating completely the great trial of motoring—the difficulties of maneuvering through congested city traffic.

A totally new principle is involved. Its first appearance on passenger cars is made in the 1924 Chandler. So sound are its fundamentals that it seems destined for general adoption. For the present, however, only Chandler owners can enjoy the unusual delight it gives to driving. It is built complete in the Chandler plant.

Many manufacturers would have been content to give the public, in any one year, the

Pikes Peak Motor

But Chandler now adds to its triumphs the Traffic Transmission so that even the most inexperienced and timorous driver may fully enjoy the masterly performance powers of the motor which so rapidly won America's respect and admiration.

In the 1924 Chandler, the Pikes Peak Motor remains essentially unchanged, save for an important improvement in the oiling system and certain refinements that make its operation flawlessly smooth and noiseless. These changes are based on the experience of thousands of users, many of whom have driven Chandler cars with Pikes Peak Motors 15000, 18000, and 20000 miles, since January last.

All those who have vainly battled with the perplexities and noise of the old-fashioned gear shift, will naturally want

Change at Any Speed
Gears Cannot Clash
Anybody Can Do It
Safest Brake on Hills
Nothing New to Learn to test for themselves the amazing improvement in driving convenience provided by the Traffic Transmission.

At all speeds in the normal driving range, whether going up hill or down, the change is made without clashing or grinding, and with perfect safety and surety.

For braking purposes it is possible to change from high gear back to second at 35 miles an hour, and from second to low when occasion arises. No dexterity, experience or practice is necessary. Anyone can do it the first time—and with the pressure of the little finger on the gear shift lever.

Gone forever is the uncertainty of shifting gears and its attendant danger on hills and in heavy traffic. Thousands who have been kept from the driver's seat by the perplexities of the old transmission can now become happy motorists.

The Traffic Transmission insures a positive, silent, instantaneous change under every condition because its construction eliminates the fundamental fault of the old transmission—that of trying to mesh two gears that are spinning at different speeds. The gears of the Traffic Transmission are always in mesh. Their teeth, instead of being chipped and shattered by unsuccessful shifts, actually improve with service.

Silence Despite Power

With the revolutionary Traffic Transmission, the improved and practically noiseless Pikes Peak Motor, the long-lived Chandler chassis with its rugged rear axle, its efficient brakes and feather-weight steering, with handsome comfortable bodies and at record prices—the 1924 Chandler offers value without precedent.

Do not fail to see it! Do not fail to drive it!

"He means when they do decline, father dear," said Billie.

Of course of course, said Sam. "When they do decline. Not till then, of course! I wouldn't dream of it."

But, once they do decline, count on me! And I should like to say for my part, he went on handsomely, what an honor I think it to become the son-in-law of a man like Mr. Bennett. Bennett? At New York, he added speciously, not so much because he knew what he meant, for he would have been the first to admit that he did not but because it sounded well!

"Oh," said Mr. Bennett. "You do do you?"

Mr. Bennett sat down. He put away his handkerchief, which had certainly earned a rest. Then he fastened a baleful stare upon his newly discovered son. It was not the sort of look a proud and happy father-in-law-to-be ought to have directed at a prospective relative. It was not, as a matter of fact, the sort of look which anyone ought to have directed at any body except possibly an exceptionally predestined judge at a criminal in the dock, convicted of a more than usually atrocious murder. Billie not being in the actual line of fire, only caught the tail end of it but it was enough to create a misgiving.

"Oh father, You aren't angry?"

"Angry?"

"You can't be angry!" demanded

Mr. Bennett with that sense of injury which comes to self-willed men when their whims are thwarted. "Why the devil shouldn't I be angry? I am angry! I come here and find you like—like this and you seem to expect me to throw on hat in the air and give three rousing cheers. Of course I'm angry! You are engaged to be married to an excellent young man of the highest character one of the finest young men I have ever met."

"Oh well," said Sam, straightening his tie modestly. "Of course if you say so."

It is awfully good of you."

"But father," cried Billie, "I never really loved Broom. I like him very much, but I could never love him. I only got engaged to him because you were so anxious for it, and because I had quarreled with the man I really loved."

"I don't want to Naturally!" said Sam. "Naturally! Quite out of the question. In a few days we'll all be roaring with laughter at the very idea."

Mr. Bennett scowled him with a look compared with which his earlier effort had been a loving glance.

"Wilhelmina," he said, "go into the outer office."

But, father, you don't understand. You don't realize that Sam has just saved my life."

"Saved your life? What do you mean?"

There was a lunatic in here with a pistol and Sam saved me."

It was nothing, said Sam modestly. "Nothing."

Go into the outer office! thundered Mr. Bennett quite unmoved by this story.

"Very well," said Billie. "I shall always love you, Sam," she said, pausing mutinously at the door.

"I shall always love you," said Sam. "Nobody can keep us apart."

"They're wasting time tying," said Sam.

"You're the most wonderful man in the world."

"There never was a girl like

"Get out!" bellowed Mr. Bennett on whose equanimity this love scene which I think beautiful, was jarring profoundly.

"Now, sir," he said to Sam, as the door closed.

"Yes, let's talk it over calmly," said Sam.

"I will not talk it over calmly!"

"Oh, come. You can do it if you try."

Broom Mortimer is the son of Henry Mortimer."

I know, said Sam. "And while it is no doubt unfair to hold that against him, it is a point you can't afford to ignore. Henry Mortimer, you and I have Henry Mortimer's number. We know what Henry Mortimer is like. A man who spends his time thinking up ways of annoying you. You can't seriously want to have the Mortimer family haled to you by marriage."

Henry Mortimer is my oldest friend."

That makes it all the worse. Unless a man who calls himself your friend is a man who likes to be teased for teasing you like that!"

"The misunderstanding to which you allude has been completely smoothed

My relations with Mr. Mortimer are thoroughly cordial."

Well, have it your own way. Personally, I wouldn't trust a man like that. And as for letting my daughter marry his son—

"I have decided once and for all."

If you'll take my advice you will blink the thing off."

"I will not take your advice."

"I wouldn't expect to charge you for it," explained Sam reassuringly. "I give it you as a friend, not as a law."

Six and eightpence to others, free to you."

"Will you understand that my daughter is going to marry Broom Mortimer?"

What are you giggling about? It sounds so silly. The idea of any one marrying Broom Mortimer, I mean."

"Let me tell you he is a thoroughly estimable young man."

"And there you put the whole thing in a nutshell. Your daughter is a girl of spirit. She would hate to be tied for life to an estimable young man."

She will do as I tell her."

Sam regarded him sternly.

"Have you no regard for her happiness?"

"I am the best judge of what is best for her."

"If you ask me," said Sam candidly, "I think you're a rotten judge."

"I did not come here to be insulted!"

"I like that! You have been insulting me ever since you arrived. What right have you to say that I'm not fit to marry your daughter?"

"I did not say that."

"You've implied it. And you've been looking at me as if I were a leper or something the pure food committee has condemned. Why? That's what I ask you," said Sam, warming up. This he fancied was the way Widgey would have tackled a troublesome client.

"Why? Answer me that!"

"I—"

Sam rapped sharply on the desk.

HIGH SCHOOL SHOWS IMPROVEMENT; HOLDS DUQUESNE TO A TIE

Scoreless Game Played Before Enthusiastic Crowd at Fayette Field.

WASHINGTON SATURDAY

Showing wonderful improvement in its defensive game the Connellsville High School football team on Saturday afternoon held the big Duquesne University High School team to a 0-0 score. The locals did not have a strong enough offense to carry the ball within striking distance of the goal but after a few minutes they settled down and held the visitors almost consistently.

The showing of the Cokers was a big surprise to many of the fans at the game. First thought when one looked at the visiting aggregation was the beating in store for Connellsville. The team, however, showed it could stand up to a damaging assault and still retain strength to drive back.

Connellsville received the kick-off and started off with a rush. May hitting the line for 17 yards and the initial first down. After the Cokers had punted Duquesne opened with an attack that snote the local line with fury. Each play, sending a backfield man hurtling into the scrimmage resulted in steady gains. Then Hilliard intercepted a forward pass and after that brings the locals stealed down.

Throughout the four quarters the teams battled hard. Connellsville went in at one time and blocked a kick. Wardley grasped the pigskin but was too slow in starting forward, he was nailed by the only Duquesne man near him.

Stilwell at the left end, showed his ability after the first excitement had worn off. Frequently he went in and took out interference which enabled Elms to grab the runner. "Cap" Elms did good work in his position and showed to better advantage than the previous week.

The backfield still needs better form in running its interference. May and Welch are speedy and the others must get away to a quicker start in order to improve the offense. There is a stiff game ahead on Saturday but the team has that never-say-die disposition now and will offer real resistance to Washington.

Neither team had the ball within the other's 25-yard line at any time. Twice Duquesne essayed place kicks but both failed. Trump endeavored to execute a drop-kick for the locals but it was blocked.

The student body, rather silent in the first half, came to life in the second half of the game and did some cheering that could be heard in the business district.

Of Interest to Fans.
Fans who attended both games played so far by the locals did not need a microscope to see the improvement wrought during the last week. It was "sticking out everywhere."

A Duquesne rooter found a rusty horseshoe hanging to a telephone pole near Brimstone corner Saturday morning. He put it in his pocket and carried it to the game. Possibly he feels the good-luck piece kept his team from defeat.

Untersown High School lost to Greensburg Saturday afternoon, 20-6. Untersown rooters, going to the game, were offered words of sympathy by local football followers as they passed through in their machines.

Four West Virginia Wesleyan football players were injured Saturday while on their way to Belmont to meet the West Virginia University team. Among them was John Moore, at this city. The automobile in which they were riding attempted to pass another car and turned over, stopping on a street car track. It was run over by a car but the men had gotten out of the machine before it was hit. They were taken to a hospital but none were said to have been seriously injured. Only one, George Stewart of Pennsylvania, a halfback, was able to play in the game.

The Connellsville High School students are preparing to stand behind their team in a body next week-end when the Washington High outfit comes here. Cheer pretenses will be held in chapel each morning and on Friday afternoon there will be a mass meeting after school. A well-known member of the alumni association will speak to the student body. Throughout the week Coach Lorew will keep his boys at the stiffest kind of work in preparation for the battle.

Penn and Yale in 1925

Penn and Yale may resume football relations in 1925. Tad Jones' visit to Philadelphia, when he looked over Coach Lou Young's spring football candidates, was more than a pleasure trip.

Negotiations have been opened for a home and away game, starting a year from next fall, and it is understood that Head Coach Jones is in favor of such an agreement.

Jones is a friend of Coach Young of the Red and Blue, and Myron Fuller, line coach of the Elis, who lives in Philadelphia, is also in favor of Yale and Penn meeting on the gridiron.

Castner Rejected Many

Jobs to Sign With Sox

Bill Friel, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, and Bob Quinn, now president of the Boston Red Sox, will watch with interest the fortune of one Paul Castner, left-handed pitcher who was signed by the Chicago White Sox. Quinn last spring made persistent efforts to sign Castner, a famous Notre Dame university athlete, for the Browns. He made two trips to South Bend, Ind., and finally obtained the youngster's promise to join St. Louis when he was ready to sign a professional contract. Quinn then rested easy. Recently he was startled to find that Castner had signed with Chicago. Quinn received a letter recently from Castner in which the latter explained that he believed he was released from his promise when Quinn severed his connection with the Browns.

Castner is more famous as a left back on the Notre Dame football team than as a baseball pitcher.

Sometimes Pays Well to Be Slow on Golf Links

Golfers playing the course of a golf club near New York were being held up, as usual, hole after hole, by the one player whom nothing but a bomb would have induced to move more quickly. At last the patience of a follower was exhausted. Going forward and addressing the leisurely player he said: "I'll give you $25 if you will resign your membership at this club." Later the slow player sought the secretary and complained he had been insulted by a member, and related the circumstance. "You did not accept the offer, did you?" asked the secretary. "Certainly not," was the indignant reply. "You did quite right to hold out," answered the secretary gravely. "I know several members who will give you much more than that."

INTERESTING SPORT NOTES

The lightweight limit for a boxer is 165 pounds.

Australia has figured in ten Davis cup challenge round matches.

Fifteen cities have franchises in the national pocket billiard league.

Sixteen runs in one inning, with 16 men going to bat after one man was out, was the record made in a recent Salt Lake-Vernon game. Salt Lake made the record for runs in an inning.

The Boston Nationals bought a new outfield candidate in the person of Bobby Ewerich, from the Worcester club of the Eastern league. He has been doing some notable work this season.

Andy Rush, pitcher, "sold" by Muskegon to Arkansas of the Western association recently, was sold again by the Muskegon club, so reports have it—this time to Waterbury of the Eastern league.
